

PARENT PERCEPTIONS OF HOME-SCHOOLING

Start of Block: Introduction

Parent Perceptions of Home Schooling

Home Schooling The aim of this study is to investigate home-schooling. It seeks to identify parental reasons for this choice, implementation processes and practices, support available, and the impact on the child and the family. We are keen to receive responses from families with different reasons for home-schooling and for children with a range of learning backgrounds.

This project is being conducted by Professor Chris Forlin and Associate Professor Dianne Chambers at The School of Education, The University of Notre Dame Australia, and Dr Joanne Banks, School of Education, Trinity College Dublin, Ireland. Ethical clearance to conduct this research has been obtained through both universities: UNDA (Number 2022-088F), Trinity (

By completing this survey, you give your consent to participate. All surveys will remain anonymous so please do not include your name anywhere.

Based on a pilot study undertaken by home-schooling parents, the average time taken to complete the survey is between 15-20mins.
