MDPI was founded in 1996 as a non-profit project for the promotion and preservation of the diversity of chemical compounds [1]. Since the first journal Molecules [2] was launched, MDPI's team has focused on serving the academic communities' ever-growing needs to publish the results of their research, quickly and openly.

MDPI's portfolio has greatly expanded in the last few years and today sums up to 250 journals in all fields and disciplines [3], including more than 50 in the biomedical area.

To ensure that we serve all academic communities well, we hereby announce that we are resuming publication of the journal Journal of Otorhinolaryngology, Hearing and Balance Medicine. We hope that you will join us as authors, reviewers, and editors to fulfill this important mission.
