Message from the Guest Editor

Dear Colleagues,

Neurological disorders affect more than 1 billion people worldwide; they are the second leading cause of death and the leading cause of disability. A deeper understanding of brain functioning has opened up new perspectives for more integrative interventions, enhancing the intrinsic CNS capabilities for behavioral restitution.

This Special Issue of Biomedicines aims to gather the mechanisms of nerve injury and neuroplasticity, potential treatments for the neurorehabilitation of major neurological disorders. Authors are invited to submit cutting-edge researches and reviews addressing a broad range of studies related to this topic, for example: CNS targets eliciting neuroplasticity, endogenous and exogenous pharmacotherapy, adaptive versus maladaptive plasticity.
