Message from the Guest Editors

Fifty years after its discovery (2022), we think that a Special Issue about the role of apoptosis in health and disease would be interesting, highlighting the balances/imbbalances between apoptosis and the cell cycle and other associated events for the maintenance of tissue homeostasis, namely, differentiation, migration, and programmed cell clearance. For this Special Issue authors are invited to review recent work or submit original studies in all areas of cell death research, with an emphasis on the aforementioned balances/imbbalances between apoptosis and other cellular processes and on novel physiological and pathological functions or regulatory mechanisms in normal tissues and in various diseases.
