Dear Colleagues,

As Editor-in-Chief of Electronics, I am pleased to announce the two winners of the 2019 Travel Award sponsored by Electronics.

The Awards were granted to Dr. Raheleh Jafari, a postdoctoral fellow at University of Agder Grimstad, Norway, and Dr. Theofanis Raptis, a postdoctoral fellow at The National Research Council (CNR), Italy. The awards consist of 800 Swiss Francs each to support attendance at any academic conference in 2019.

Dr. Raheleh Jafari's current research interests include fuzzy logic, fuzzy equations, neural networks, artificial intelligence, fuzzy control, machine learning, stability analysis, system identification, and nonlinear system modeling.

2019 ELECTRONICS TRAVEL AWARDS WINNERS

The research interests of Dr. Theofanis Raptis include data distribution in industrial networks, distributed algorithms for wirelessly powered networks, and experimentation with IoT testbeds and platforms.

Electronics is proud to support these young researchers working in the field of electronics, and wish them further success in their careers. We are grateful to all who submitted applications—thank you for letting us get to know you and your work. We hope all of you continue to pay attention to Electronics in the future.
