Food integrity is “the state of being whole, entire or undiminished or in perfect condition”. It is made up of four pillars of food, i.e., food safety, food quality, food defence and food fraud. Although many food fraud cases are not risky to human health, there are cases where fraudulent activities seriously compromise food safety and threaten public health. All food fraud cases compromise quality, mislead consumers and affect brand reputation. The integrity of our food is under constant threat from fraud to boost profit and exploit that added value of food and drink products.

In this Special Issue of Foods, we encourage the submission of manuscripts (original research or review articles) related to food fraud, food safety, food defence and authenticity. Manuscripts focusing on drivers of food fraud, mitigation and prevention measures, strategies and solutions to prevent fraudulent practices by improving traceability and safeguarding food authenticity are welcome. We look forward to your contribution to this Special Issue.

Foods (ISSN 2304-8158) is an open access and peer reviewed scientific journal that publishes original articles, critical reviews, case reports, and short communications on food science. Articles are released monthly online, with unlimited free access. Currently, Foods has been indexed by the Science Citation Index Expanded (SCIE - Web of Science), PubMed, and Scopus. Our aim is to encourage scientists, researchers, and other food professionals to publish their experimental and theoretical results as much detail as possible. We therefore invite you to be one of our authors, and in doing so share your important research findings with the global food science community.
