Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue of Genealogy, entitled, “Contesting Power: Race, Ethnicity, and Self-Representations in Global Perspectives”, will focus on the complex racial formations that emerged in multiethnic societies in the postmodern era and the ways marginalized racial or ethnic communities responded to racial projects advanced by hegemonic groups in these societies. Questions that fall under the scope of this issue include: How do disempowered communities communicate and display modes of resistance? How do minoritized and multiracial people navigate notions of their identity? How do marginalized individuals and groups challenge racialized constructions of authenticity? And to what effect do these methods of resistance have on destabilizing formal and informal systems of power?

The editors especially welcome submissions from scholars working in interdisciplinary fields that engage with ethnic studies, mixed race studies, Black studies, Asian American studies, Chicanx studies, and critical refugee studies.

Message from the Editorial Board

Genealogy is a scholarly journal that provides a venue for academic, cutting-edge contributions to the interdisciplinary field of genealogy studies. We welcome contributions that examine genealogies of family lineage, use genealogical considerations and methods in examining other historical processes (including migration histories, personal, social, and national identities, and social institutions) or study the construction of genealogical narratives. The journal is also interested in biographical studies and their contribution to the understanding of broader social and historical phenomena.

Author Benefits

Open Access: free for readers, with article processing charges (APC) paid by authors or their institutions.

High Visibility: indexed within Scopus, ESCI (Web of Science), and many other databases.

Rapid Publication: manuscripts are peer-reviewed and a first decision is provided to authors approximately 24.9 days after submission; acceptance to publication is undertaken in 4.9 days (median values for papers published in this journal in the second half of 2023).
