Message from the Guest Editor

Dear Colleagues,

This issue of Humans will offer readings on the doings of archaeologists and being an archaeologist. It will address faddish or persistent Topics in conferences, journals, or dissertations; citation circles; archaeology issues in war-torn countries; the economic impact of projects and our responsibilities to workers, their communities, and to local museums; the relevance and application or dissemination of findings; audience and accountability; and retrospectives on long-running or famous projects by directors. Papers could also address who we are; the process of making an archaeologist; our working conditions; the curation of notes, artifacts, photos/maps, and careers; or the avocational archaeologist. Papers from authors situated in private businesses, museums, or government settings as well as those of academics are also solicited.

For high-quality papers invited by the GE, authors may be entitled with a full waiver on the normal article processing charges (1000 CHF).

If you consider contributing to this Special Issue, just feel free to contact the editorial office(humans@mdpi.com) if you have any questions.

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Humans is a multidisciplinary, anthropologically oriented online journal that publishes contributions focusing on the anthropological subfields (archaeology, ethnology/cultural anthropology, physical/biological anthropology, and anthropological linguistics), as well as those that integrate developments across subfields or implement multidisciplinary approaches. The journal is devoted to the rapid publication of cutting-edge developments in theory, method, technique, and data analysis. While original holistic research and contributions are given the highest priority, short communications and reviews are also encouraged. All contributions are rigorously peer-reviewed. Conference proceedings and Special Issues by guest editors that highlight outstanding research contributions on specific topics are welcome. The journal is designed to appeal to a diverse audience of research scientists and practitioners in both academia and industry.
