Message from the Guest Editor

This Special Issue aims to collect the pathological mechanisms of neuroinflammation-induced toxicity in the fields of neurodegenerative diseases, stroke, brain tumors, and PM2.5 air pollution. It will include original research articles or review papers on the molecular mechanisms of cytotoxicity induced by different injuries. Additional potential neuroprotective topics include drugs, natural anti-inflammatory agents, and nanomedicines that may play a key role in developing new strategies for therapeutic drugs in the development of neuroinflammatory symptoms.
