Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

In the last few decades, the use of coastal areas has expanded along with the increase of potential threats of current and future coastal hazards. Many research works have been extensively carried out to develop methods for coastal response modelling and coastal hazard assessment. The purpose of this Special Issue is to publish the most exciting research with respect to the above subjects and therefore to enlarge the understanding of coastal response processes in various spatial and temporal scales spanning from short-term storm events to long-term climate change impacts.
