Message from the Guest Editors

Inflammation is a major problem of the host response against external pathogen invasion or internal pathologic progression. Immune responses are complex and essential, affecting the organ function and survival of an individual. Therefore, we invite researchers and clinicians to submit original articles, as well as review articles, associated with inflammation. We are particularly interested in articles describing new insights and findings on the effectiveness or mechanisms of inflammatory responses to injury or disease. The work could be based on animal studies, human studies or clinical trials and may include anti-inflammatory prevention and the treatment of inflammatory diseases. Potential topics of interest include, but are not limited to, the following:

- Clinical and animal research on inflammation;
- Effect and mechanism of inflammatory response to injury and disease;
- Immune responses and inflammatory processes;
- Current research and development with inflammatory aspects;
- New aspects of therapeutic strategies of anti-inflammatory prevention and treatment.
