Message from the Guest Editors

Autoimmune and autoinflammatory skin diseases are currently the subject of significant research in laboratory and clinical settings with new developments presented by scientists every single day. Despite incredible advances in our understanding of autoimmunity and inflammation, many questions remain unanswered. In this Special Issue, entitled “Frontiers of Dermatological Research”, we would like to present a collection of articles on the pathogenesis, epidemiology, clinical observations, and treatment of inflammation under different dermatological conditions. We invite submissions on genetic backgrounds, the role of the inflammasome, biological treatments and their complications, clinical investigations, and treatments using inflammation as their mechanism of action. This Special Issue will present different aspects of this fascinating process, from the basic science to the clinic, to provide readers with an overview of the state of the art in this topic.
