Message from the Guest Editors

It is our great pleasure to invite you to join us for the XII International Conference on Immunonutrition (<https://isinbarcelona2021.com/>), which will be held online, between the 14–16 July 2021, and is organized by the International Society for Immunonutrition (ISIN). This symposium is intended for students, researchers, clinical professionals, and industry in the interdisciplinary field of nutritional and immunological health, examining many interactions between nutrition, immunity, lifestyle, and several closely related areas of knowledge in health and disease. This symposium will provide an outstanding opportunity for scientific discussion with speakers from many different countries across the world.

Your participation will help address the issues we as an international society, as ISIN, are committed to, by developing a programme that meets the expectations of all who are devoted to the interdisciplinary science of immunonutrition. Therefore, we strongly encourage you to participate actively in this symposium.

Papers derived from the oral and poster presentations will have the opportunity to be published in this Special Issue with a 20% discount.
