Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

Nutrition in early life is crucial to short- and long-term health, including physical, motor, cognitive, and socio-emotional development. Our current understanding of maternal nutrition during pregnancy, infant nutrition, and health and development through the life course is somewhat insufficient and remains a challenge for scientists.

This Special Issue on “Nutrition in Early-Life and Its Impact through the Life Course” is now inviting submissions of manuscripts, either original research or reviews, with an emphasis on maternal nutrition, infant nutrition, and their impacts on short- and long-term health and development. Biological mechanisms underlying the impacts will be considered as well.
