Message from the Guest Editor

This Special Issue aims not only to present the leading science in this area but also to foster collaborations and set the foundation for future funding applications.

We aim to present several topics in this Special Issue as follows:

- Coral reef restoration;
- The restoration of soft bottom areas;
- The biological restoration of manmade structures, such as jetties and wave breakers;
- The involvement of communities and education in coastal restoration;
- Nature-based solutions' for coastal conservation/rehabilitation.

We invite a range of research and review/opinion papers from both established and new authors. As mentioned, an effort will be made to foster collaboration between different authors.
