Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

Few political issues generate more controversy, or inspire stronger feelings, than those touching religion. Moreover, few are more important for shaping the contours of global politics, political thought, and popular discourse. For this Special Issue of Religions, we invite submissions from a broad range of fields, methodologies, and substantive areas on Religion and Contemporary Political Theory and Practice.

Possible topics include: political theology and theopolitics; nationalism and political religion; multiculturalism, pluralism, and toleration; secularism and the public sphere; community and social solidarity; citizenship and civil religion; post-colonialism and indigeneity; civil disobedience and resistance; gender; law and constitutionalism; theocracy and religious jurisprudence; and apocalypticism, messianism, and eschatology.

We look forward to receiving your contributions.

Message from the Editorial Board

Fresh developments in the disciplines that consistently make significant contributions to our understanding of religious personality, authority, devotion, and community - disciplines ranging from psychology, sociology, and anthropology to history, art history, philosophy, literary criticism, and political science – fuel general, as well as scholarly, interest in the world's religions.

Religions is inviting innovative and comparative contributions. Please consider Religions as an exceptional, exciting enterprise ready to reward your trust, attention, and participation.
