Message from the Guest Editor

Dear Colleagues,

We are pleased to invite you to contribute to a Special Issue of Religions focusing on Confucianism. This Special Issue aims to discuss the relationship between the individual and the community from the perspective of Confucianism. This relationship has long been an attractive topic in ancient Greek philosophy; however, it is also one of the core issues discussed in the history of Confucianism.

In this Special Issue, original research articles and reviews are welcome. Research areas may include (but are not limited to) the following:

- Discussion of the relationship between the individual and the community in different periods of the history of Confucianism;
- Comparative study of the relationship of the individual and the community between Chinese and Western philosophy.

We look forward to receiving your contributions.

Message from the Editorial Board

Fresh developments in the disciplines that consistently make significant contributions to our understanding of religious personality, authority, devotion, and community - disciplines ranging from psychology, sociology, and anthropology to history, art history, philosophy, literary criticism, and political science – fuel general, as well as scholarly, interest in the world's religions.

Religions is inviting innovative and comparative contributions. Please consider Religions as an exceptional, exciting enterprise ready to reward your trust, attention, and participation.
