

resources

Dear Colleagues,

As the Editor-in-Chief of Resources, I am pleased to announce the winners of the Resources Best Paper Awards 2019. The winners are as follows:

First Award (Article): electronic certificate and 500 Swiss francs (CHF)

Tomer Fishman, Rupert J. Myers, Orlando Rios, T.E. Graedel, USA
Paper: Implications of Emerging Vehicle Technologies on Rare Earth Supply and Demand in the United States (doi:10.3390/resources7010009)

Second Award (Review): electronic certificate and 500 Swiss francs (CHF)

Laurence Kavanagh, Jerome Keohane, Guiomar Garcia Cabellos, Andrew Lloyd, John Cleary, IE
Global Lithium Sources—Industrial Use and Future in the Electric Vehicle Industry: A Review (doi:10.3390/resources7030057)

Third Award (Article): electronic certificate and an offer of a free publication without a fixed deadline in Resources

Rafael Laurenti, Michael Martin, Åsa Stenmarck, SE
Developing Adequate Communication of Waste Footprints of Products for a Circular Economy—A Stakeholder Consultation (doi: 10.3390/resources7040078)

2019 BEST PAPER AWARD WINNERS

Thank you to everyone who participated in these awards with your excellent papers published in Resources. This has certainly been a tough choice for the Evaluation Committee, with several brilliant contenders, and we are extremely proud to collaborate with all of you in advancing this scientific field of research. Please join us in congratulating the winners of the Resources Best Paper Awards 2019 for their achievement.

Prof. Dr. Damien Giurco
Editor-in-Chief, Resources
Institute for Sustainable Futures, University of Technology Sydney