Message from the Guest Editor

Dear Colleagues,

The purpose of this Special Issue is to publish original, important, and visionary papers describing scientific methods and technologies that improve the efficiency, productivity, quality, and reliability of smart environments. In this Special Issue, we want to focus on understanding what needs to be done to make efficient, human, and environmentally friendly, and sustainable intelligent social systems a reality. We strongly encourage the contribution of scientific results from experts from universities and companies around the world.

Best regards,

Guest Editor
