Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

During 2020, the world was confronted with a global pandemic which had and continues to have an impact on all countries, not only in terms of people infected, the actual death toll, but also due to its repercussions in diverse areas of daily life, such as employment, access to foodstuffs, and basic social services) (Nicola et al. 2020). While we are still experiencing a situation that embodies a threat to each and every one of us, worldwide, there are strong asymmetries in the way that Covid-19 pandemic has affected different social groups and the way how people deal with and manage these impacts.

This Special Issue seeks to understand the impacts of the (post) Covid-19 pandemic as experienced by the Roma in different European countries, both in terms of difficulties and also opportunities that opened up with the pandemic and what strategies have Romani people and their families activated to deal with the constraints to which they have been subjected.
