Message from the Guest Editors

Good quality of water and soil is essential for human health, to sustain the biodiversity of aquatic and soil ecosystems and to ensure healthy agriculture and food production.

For certain contaminants, such as arsenic, long-term exposure even to small quantities can lead to serious health problems over time.

We are pleased to invite you to submit research contributions relevant but not limited to the monitoring and removal or containment or treatment of different inorganic and organic contaminants such as heavy metal(oid)s, microplastics, toxins or pesticides from different matrices such as water soil, sludges or wastewater, which still remain a challenge [...]

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

In the context of global changes, the sustainable management of water cycles, going from global and regional water cycles to urban, industrial and agricultural water cycles, plays a very important role on the water resources and on their relationships with food, energy, biodiversity, ecosystem functioning and human health. Water invites authors to provide innovative original full articles, critical reviews and timely short communications and to propose special issues devoted to new technological and scientific domains and to interdisciplinary approaches of the water cycles. We ensure a critical review process and a quick turnaround between submission and final decision.
