

world

an Open Access Journal by MDPI

Entrepreneurship and Innovation Management: Highlighting the Role of Context

Guest Editors:

Prof. Dr. Leo-Paul Dana

Rowe School of Business,
Dalhousie University, Halifax, NS
B3H 4R2, Canada

Dr. Aidin Salamzadeh

Faculty of Management,
University of Tehran, Tehran, Iran

Deadline for manuscript
submissions:

31 October 2024

Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

This Special Issue is dedicated to investigating the contextual aspects of the entrepreneurship and innovation management research, by providing an opportunity to devote more attention to these factors and highlight their role. In addition, this Special Issue is a multidisciplinary one in nature and invites respected scholars from diverse contexts to consider various links between economic, political, social, and environmental issues in entrepreneurship and innovation management research.

Suggested themes include (but are not limited to) the following:

Exploring the role of context in developing and testing new entrepreneurship and innovation management theories;
Comparing the role of contextual factors affecting entrepreneurship and innovation management theory and practice in diverse contexts;

Identifying the most influential/critical contextual factors affecting entrepreneurship and innovation management research and practice;

Interdisciplinary approach toward entrepreneurship and innovation management.

We look forward to receiving your contributions.

Prof. Dr. Leo-Paul Dana

Dr. Aidin Salamzadeh

Guest Editors

mdpi.com/si/174009

Special Issue